Dear Sir or Madam,

Under the Asylum Seekers' Benefits Act (Asylbewerberleistungsgesetz) in conjunction with the Residence Act (Aufenthaltsgesetz), you have been obliged to attend an integration course.

What is an integration course?

The general integration course consists of two parts, the language course and the orientation course.

In the language course you learn the vocabulary you need to speak and write in everyday life. This includes contact with authorities, conversations with neighbours and at work, writing letters and filling out forms.

The orientation course informs you about life in Germany. Here you learn about the legal system, the culture and the recent history of the country.

The general integration course consists of a language course with 600 lesson units (one lesson unit lasts 45 minutes) and an orientation course with 100 lesson units. The language course consists of six course sections, each with 100 lesson units. The first 300 lesson units are called the basic course (Basiskurs), the next 300 lesson units are called the advanced language course (Aufbausprachkurs).

There are also special integration courses, for example for women, parents, young adults and for people who are unable to read and write properly. These courses comprise 1,000 lesson units.

If you learn especially quickly, you can attend an intensive course.

The institution that conducts integration courses, the so-called “course provider” (Kursträger), will carry out a placement test with you before the course begins. This is to determine which course and course section would be best for you to start with. The placement test is free of charge.

Participation in the final test

The final test consists of a language test and a test at the end of the orientation course called “Living in Germany” (Leben in Deutschland). If you demonstrate sufficient knowledge of German in the language test (language level B1) and pass the “Living in Germany” test, you have successfully completed the integration course. You then receive the “integration course certificate” (Zertifikat Integrationskurs).

If you do not pass one or both of the tests, you receive a certificate showing your result.

The participation in the final test is free of charge.

Registration for the integration course with the course provider

If you are obliged to attend an integration course, you will receive written confirmation of this in the form of an obligation certificate (Verpflichtungsschein) from the office responsible for benefits under the Asylum Seekers’ Benefits Act.

Please register for an integration course at the location you have been given and present your obligation certificate there. If you have not been given a specific location, register as soon as possible with a course provider of your choosing. In the obligation certificate, under “The obligation to attend is valid until ...”, there is a date. You need to register by this date at the latest.

Course providers, course locations in your area as well as your competent regional branch of the Federal Office can be found on the Internet at:

<https://bamf-navi.bamf.de/de/>

To ensure prompt course attendance, the Federal Office can send you to a specific course provider.

The course provider has to notify you of the expected start of a course. The course should start within six weeks of your registration. If no course is available during this time, the course provider has to inform you of this.

Please note that your eligibility to attend expires if, for reasons within your control, you do not start the integration course within one year of registering or if you interrupt your course attendance for longer than one year.

Proper course attendance

To achieve the objective of the integration course, you should participate in the course properly. That means that you should attend the lessons regularly until the end of the course and take the final test. Your course provider will confirm your proper attendance in writing if you wish.

Childcare

If you need childcare in order to be able to attend an integration course, please contact the course provider. They will inform you about available childcare options.

Change of course provider

In general, you are only permitted to change your course provider after completing a course section. A change is only possible under special circumstances, in particular if you move, if you change between part-time and full-time courses, to enable childcare or to take up training or gainful employment after completing a section of the course.

If you change for other reasons, you lose the lesson units of the course section that you have not attended.

In case of a permitted change, the course provider has to return the certificate of eligibility to you.

Costs of the integration course

The participation in the course is free of charge for you.

Travel costs

As a recipient under the Asylum Seekers' Benefits Act, you can apply to the Federal Office for an allowance to help with your travel costs to the integration course. For this, the course location needs to be at least 3 km away from your home. The allowance is granted as a flat-rate. Please send the application to the regional branch of the Federal Office responsible for your place of residence. You can find it on the Internet at <https://bamf-navi.bamf.de/de/>.

Repetition of a maximum of 300 lesson units of the language course

Under certain conditions, you can repeat up to 300 lesson units of the language course once. For this, you need to have attended the language course in full, taken a language test afterwards and not demonstrated sufficient knowledge of German (language level B1).

To attend the repeat lessons, an application is required. Please submit your application to the regional branch of the Federal Office responsible for your place of residence.

If you are attending a literacy course, you do not need to take the language test first in order to repeat the 300 lesson units.

What else you should know

You can also obtain all the application forms mentioned in this information sheet from the course provider, from your foreigners authority or from the regional branch of the Federal Office responsible for your place of residence. You'll also find the forms on the website at:

<https://www.bamf.de/formulare>.

You also have the option to submit your applications to the Federal Office digitally via the Federal Portal (Bundesportal).

The following applications are available digitally:

- Application for admission to the integration course
- Application for admission to repeat a maximum of 300 lessons of the language course
- Application for a travel allowance incl. granting of a higher daily allowance

You can access the online applications on the Federal Portal via this Internet address:

You can find all further information on the online application at:

Internet address for information on the online application

Please also note the services offered by the migration counselling centres (Migrationsberatungsstellen) and the youth migration services (Jugendmigrationsdienste). They will help you with applications, answer questions and deal with your problems and can find a suitable integration course for you. You can find out where migration counselling centres and youth migration services are located in your area either from your foreigners authority, from the regional branches of the Federal Office or on the Internet at <https://bamf-navi.bamf.de/de/>.

The information sheet contains the most important information for you on participating in the integration course. The course provider can also answer further questions.

When attending an integration course, you are not covered by statutory accident insurance.

Attending an integration course has no bearing on your asylum procedure.

We wish you every success in attending the integration course!
